Dedication

The Senior Class proudly dedicates the 1961 Deer Leap to Mrs. Garafano, who has assisted us with patience, listened to our complaints with a smile, encouraged us when we were disheartened, and contributed in many ways to our success.

In Appreciation

MR. BREEN

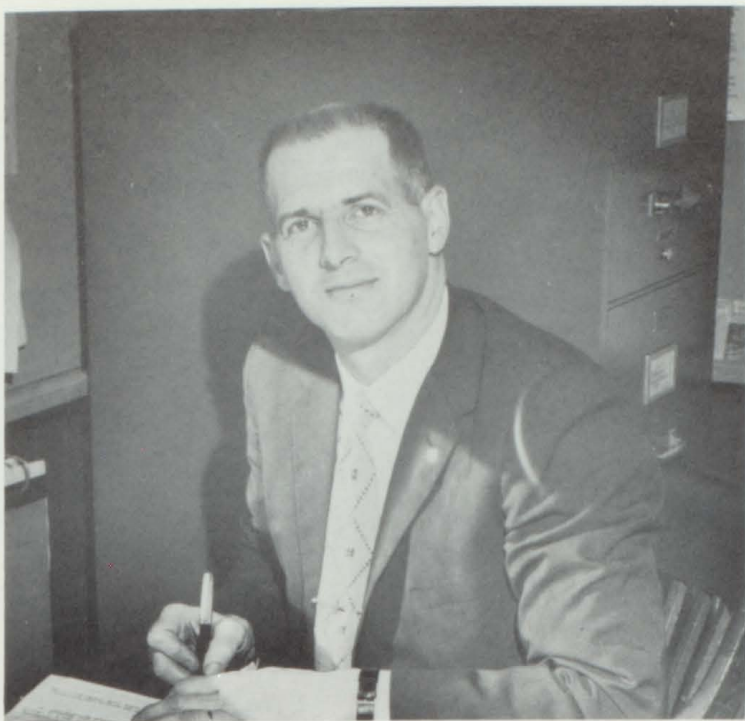

MRS. LAMONT

MR. BRASURE

We, the members of the class of 1961, wish to recognize the many years of fine leadership that you have given Bristol High. We wish you every success in your advancement.

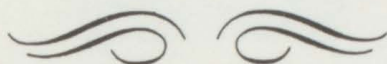

We also wish to extend our sincere thanks to Mrs. Lamont and Mr. Brasure for your assistance to our class in many ways, particularly in connection with the Deer Leap, Scoop and Dramatics.

RICHARD H. BREEN
Principal

Principal's Message

Given the changing nature of our society, your yearbook will be a great contribution to your formal and informal identification with Bristol High School.

Superintendent's Message

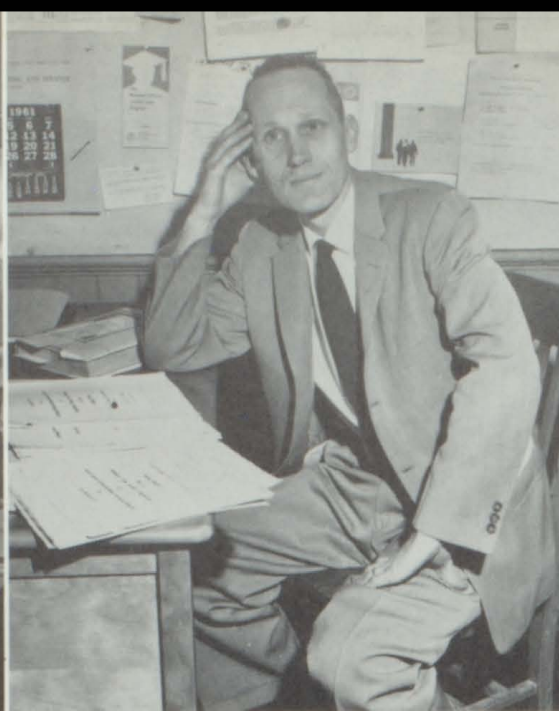

We need to beware lest we SPEND our lives instead of INVESTING them; waste our energies rather than UTILIZING them; bury our treasures when we should be CULTIVATING them into new life.

Class History

We, the class of '61, have decided to share our exciting experiences and memories by publishing our memoirs. We will entitle this great work "The Memoirs of the Wonderful Class of 1961."

In the first chapter we find a group of energetic six-year olds entering the first grade. Those of us who are still with our class that were with us way back in 1949 are: Carolyn Lathrop, Carol Jacobs, Carolyn Yashko, Carolyn Bristol, Marge Weaver, Linda Bromley, Pat Murphy, George Scribner, Roger Kendall, Skip Ingram, Louise Davis, Jeff McDonough, Donald Lathrop, David Lathrop, and Mike Thompson. Ruth Tomasi also started with us and is still an honorary member of our class, although she is in Germany.

We were divided into two classes this year as we were in all of the first eight grades. Our teachers were Mrs. Hannon and Mrs. Orvis. This year we ventured to the recreation field for our class picnic.

In the second chapter we find that we have moved on to our second year of school. Bob Willey came to us from the wilds of Bristol Flats, and Carolyn Yashko left us. Our teachers this year were Mrs. Carpenter and Mrs. Marshall, and again we dutifully marched off to the ball park for our picnic.

In the third chapter we find ourselves thinking back to our third grade teachers, Mrs. Orvis and Miss O'Connor, and where did we go on our class picnic? You guessed it! The ball park. Liz Lord joined us this year.

While reading over the fourth chapter, we find that we were really getting old by the time we entered our fourth year. We were actually studying history and geography. Mrs. Trombley and Miss Leonard were our advisors this year. There were no official class picnics that year.

In the fifth and sixth chapters we find ourselves under the leadership of Mrs. Gregory and Mrs. Hutchins. We journeyed to Lake Dunmore for our class picnic during both of these years.

In chapter seven we find ourselves thrilled at the idea of being in junior high. We were kept busy with new schedules and harder subjects. This year Carolyn Yashko and Linda Bromley decided they couldn't stay away from us any longer and came back to join our class. This year we had Mrs. Whitcomb and Mrs. Hutchins as advisors. We traveled to Ethan Allen Park for our yearly picnic.

While looking over chapter eight, we find that the girls were all in one section and the boys in another. The boys were under the leadership of Mr. DeSorcie while the girls still had our friend, Mrs. Hutchins. Jimmy Cyr came to join us. This year we started thinking seriously of raising money. We had a few dances and a very successful turkey raffle. We went to Bayside for our trip.

GRADE 1

GRADE 7

In the ninth chapter, we find ourselves finally in high school. Somehow we managed to live through the dreaded initiation. New members of our class this year were Donald Burbank, Roger Besaw, Bruce Goodyear, Chase Atkins, Brenda Stearns, Calvin Reynolds and Harold Masterson. We were placed under the watchful eye of Mr. DeSorcie who was assisted by Mr. Drabble. We went to Bayside on our class trip and had loads of fun shooting dead fish around the bus.

Upon looking into the tenth chapter, we find that Fred Tupper joined us that year. Mr. DeSorcie and Mr. Drabble were our advisors again. We held our class picnic at Lake Dunmore.

In the eleventh chapter we find that we were very busy. The big event of the year was our prom, "Sayonora." It was the best prom ever. We had a Japanese setting with "Sayonora" as our theme. Much hard work and many hours were put into preparing for this affair. It took patience and teamwork on the part of the advisors, Mrs. Garafano and Mr. Goodrich, as well as the juniors. We worked up until 6:30 the evening of the Prom. All in all it proved to be a great experience for all of us, and we enjoyed hearing all the comments we received on our decorations when the evening was on its way.

In the twelfth and final chapter we find ourselves busily preparing for graduation. It seems impossible but here we are. This year Betty Robertson and Ruth Jennings joined us. On February 5, we ventured to Montreal on our class trip. We first visited the wax museum, which proved to be exciting and something we all enjoyed very much. We then made a stop at Saint Joseph's Oratory of Mount Royal where some of us attended church before going to the Chic-n-coup where we had reservations for dinner. At 1:30 we entered the forum where the ice follies were held, which was our main purpose for going to Montreal. The follies were just wonderful. We started home at 4:30 and arrived in Bristol at approximately 9:45. Mrs. Garafano and Mr. Breen were our advisors.

CLASS SONG

Tune: Now Is The Hour

We've had good times through the years;
Parties and dances and ball games,
Glee Club and band we've enjoyed;
Now we must leave them forever.

Chorus:

For, now is the time when we must say good-bye.
Soon we'll be sailing far on the sea;
Farewell to you, our friends and teachers dear;
We'll keep our memories through the coming years.

Second Verse:

School days have faded away;
No more will we be returning;
Unknown the way lies ahead;
We must continue our journey.

CLASS POEM

The end of each stage of our live
Resembles the evening sunset,
As shadows of day-done steal across the azure sky -
Amber, violet, brilliant red, a touch of somber gray.

Joys unsurpassing, friends kind and true,
Happy memories dear B. H. S. of you
Linger in the peaceful smile of
Our sunset of high school days.

In the colorful splendor of the evening sky,
We are given a promise of a new day to come,
And we find a new goal for which to aim in
Our sunset of high school days.

"GETTING IN TOUCH"

During the summer of 1975, I decided to take a vacation from my job as a New York social worker. Pat, co-owner of Madame Zon Zon's Beauty Bar, which she owns with Marjorie Weaver, joined me for the purpose of getting in touch with our old classmates.

At 7:00 we boarded a trans-continental jet at Idlewild airport. Our pilot was Jeff McDonough.

Our first stop was at New Falls, New York, to see Mike Thompson, the mayor. We joined him for breakfast. Afterwards, we boarded our plane and flew to Connecticut to see Carol Jacobs and Brenda Stearns, nurses at the Hartford Memorial Hospital. While taking a tour of the hospital, we were surprised to see Roger Kendall, businessman, nursing a bad case of ulcers.

From there we went to Washington, D.C., to see Carolyn Bristol, senator from Vermont. She showed us around the Capitol building. We then stopped off at the Pentagon to visit Liz Lord, receptionist.

After this we headed for the Naval shipyard in Massachusetts to visit Commodore Willey. While at the yard we saw Betty Robertson, stenographer at the ship building headquarters.

After seeing Betty, we headed for Michigan to see Carolyn Lathrop where she is a prominent secretary. While there we skipped out to the Besaw farm with Carolyn.

We then set out for Kansas to visit the Kenilworth Laboratories where Fred Tupper is a chemist and Chase Atkins, a research scientist. While in Kansas we visited Louise Davis, a busy housewife.

From there we took a taxi to see Harold Masterson's huge dairy farm. On our way we met Bruce Goodyear, David Lathrop and Donald Lathrop, who were working on the new Superhighway.

We turned around and started back toward the airport. Since we were hungry, we stopped at Lee Ingram's Restaurant for a turkey dinner, with turkey supplied by Donald Burbank's Turkey Ranch. During the meal we were entertained by Ruth Jennings, a singer and guitarist.

In the morning we boarded our plane and headed for Florida. In Florida we were delighted to hear about George Scribner's success as a sports demonstrator.

In the afternoon we took a tour of Miami colleges and saw Carolyn Yashko, an English professor.

We then flew up to Michigan where we saw Calvin Reynolds and Jim Cyr, co-owners of a large A & P store.

We looked for the prominent business man, J. E. Cragen, but found that he was on his yacht somewhere in the Atlantic.

Eight o'clock found us back in New York at the airport. We hailed a taxi and headed for home. Although we were mighty tired, we were very pleased that we had been able to see all our old classmates in only two days.

Class Will

To B. H. S. we leave our ability to get along with the faculty.

To the Juniors we leave our ability to go to Montreal on a class trip.

To the Sophomores we leave our ability to earn money for class projects.

To the Freshmen we leave our ability to reach the top.

Pat Murphy leaves her ability to get along with the guys to Gloria Purinton.

Carol Jacobs leaves her serious nature to Mary Kenyon.

George Scribner leaves his curly hair to Kathy Lord.

Brenda Stearns leaves her ability to play the piano to Vilas Masterson.

Roger Kendall leaves his old exams to Hubie Norton.

Harold Masterson leaves his ability to drive to John Desjardin.

Chase Atkins leaves his perfect attendance record to Alice Lavonche.

Carolyn Yashko leaves her shyness and her ability to have "Sehsurc" to Michele Ann Yashko.

Skip Ingram leaves his ability to get along with girls to Denny McDonough.

Betty Robertson leaves her ability to take shorthand to her sister, Judy.

Louise Davis leaves her quietness to Charlie Cardell.

Jeff McDonough leaves his ability to play basketball to David Adams.

Liz Lord leaves her long hair to Susan Adams.

Ruth Jennings leaves her ability to be friendly to Mary Kenyon.

Donald Lathrop leaves his ability to be quiet in class to Pete Tomasi.

David Lathrop leaves his ability to do his homework to Pete Perlee.

Linda Bromley leaves her brown eyes to Sandy Wedge.

Roger Besaw and Carolyn Lathrop leave their ability to go steady to Danny Layn and Susan Adams.

Jack Cragen leaves his ability to water ski to Danny Layn.

Calvin Reynolds leaves his ability to watch his waist to Vilas Masterson.

Carolyn Bristol leaves her height to Michele Yashko.

Fred Tupper leaves his dry humor to Danny Layn.

Bob Willey leaves his ability to stick with one girl to Eddie Coddling.

Bruce Goodyear leaves his load of kids from Lincoln to Rudy Cram.

Mike Thompson leaves his interest in dancing to David Williams.

Donald Burbank leaves his ability to zoom up Route 116 without getting caught to anyone who wants it.

Ruth Tomasi leaves her ability to speak German to her brother, Pete.

Curricular Activities

Sciences Offer a Challenge to Students

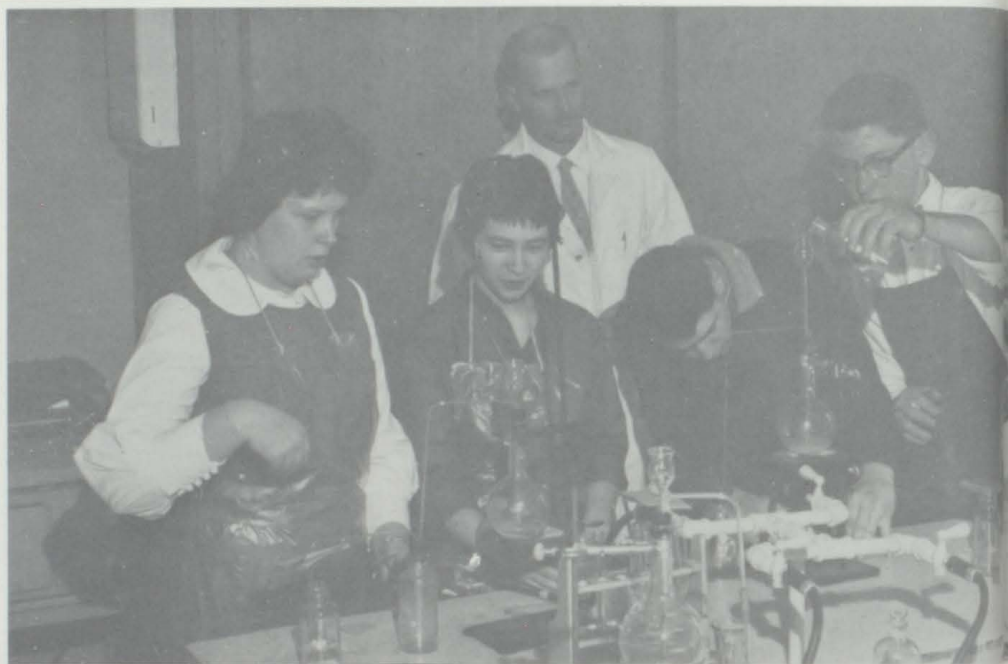

In this Age of Space, the students in physics classes find the study of the principle of heat, sound, light, electricity challenging and interesting.

Mr. Drabble demonstrates the principle of falling objects to Carol Jacobs, Carolyn Yashko, Roger Kendall, and Roger Besaw.

Running a close second to physics in this outer space marathon is the study of chemistry. In the chemistry classes, scientifically minded students become familiar with many chemical substances.

Here future scientists, Sally Smith, Connie Bouvier, Pat Burke, and Peter Tomasi, await a reaction of the experiment under the instruction of Mr. Breen.

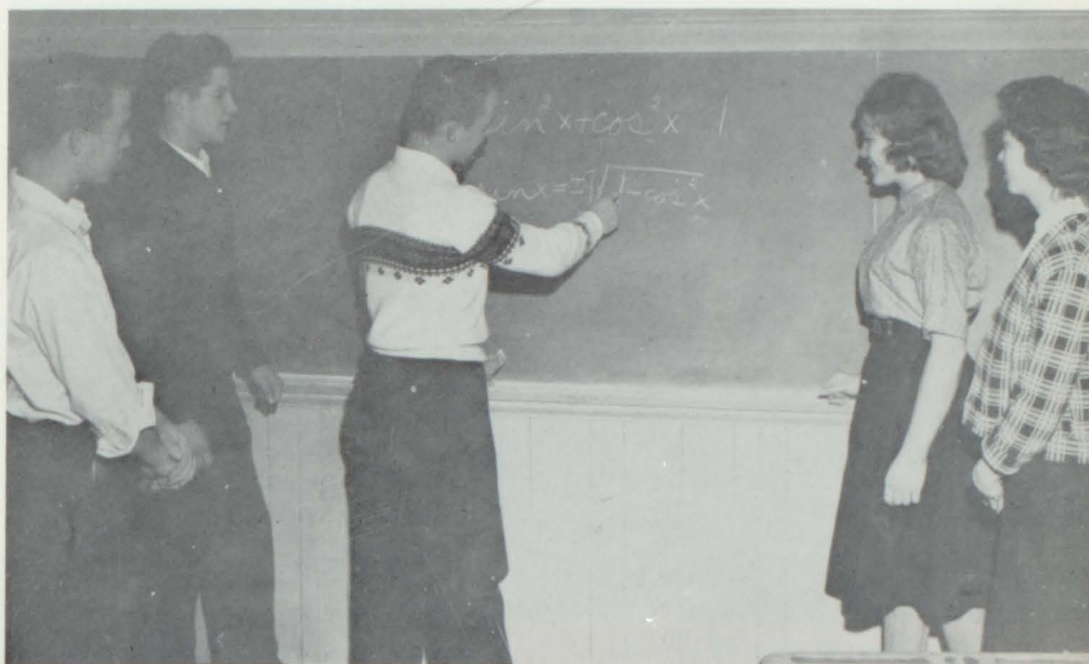

Students of biology begin their study with the simplest of plants and conclude it with the most complicated structure - the human body.

Here students use a chart for a better understanding of the subject. They are John Tulley, Rodney Smith, Bonnie Kennedy, Rody Cousino, and Michele Yashko.

Interest + Effort = Success

Steadily progressing in the field of mathematics, students in trigonometry solve problems involving triangles. Donald explains a solution to an equation to David Lathrop, Bob Willey, Carolyn Yashko, and Carol Jacobs.

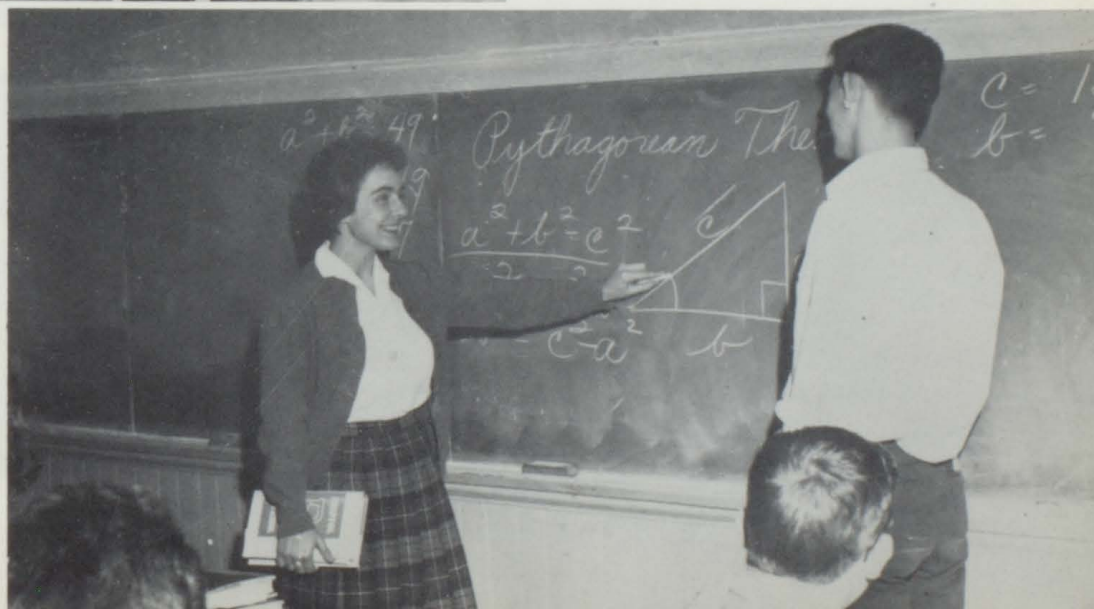

Students of Algebra II find a world of mathematical equations.

Miss Garand shows how an equation looks as it is drawn on a graph.

Plane geometry introduces future mathematicians to a wonderland of numbers, figures, questions, and answers.

Miss Garand explains the Pythagorean Theory to Jeff McDonough.

English and Speech Emphasize the Art of Expression

In English 12, English Literature is the basis for the year's work.

Mr. Brasure points out a picture of Queen Elizabeth to George and Harold as the rest of the class looks on.

Speech trains students in oral communication.

Here the speech class participates in a round table discussion on current problems.

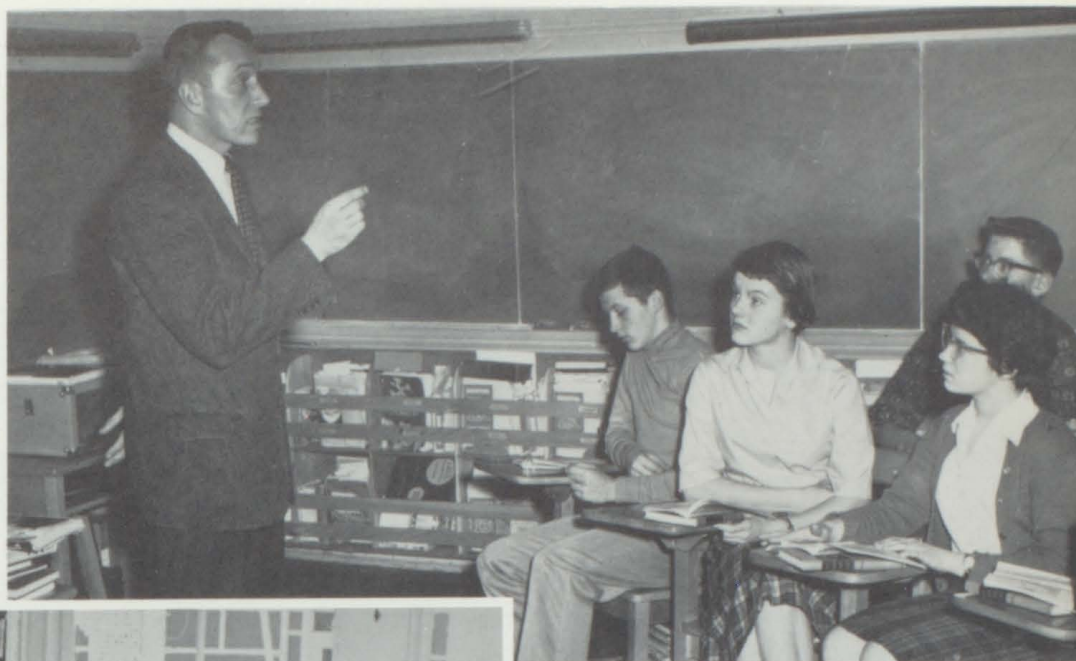

Students of English 11 study American Literature. Working with reference books also plays an important part in English.

Better Understanding Through Foreign Languages

Foreign languages broaden a student's mind and give a better understanding of English as well,

Mr. Roberts lectures the German II class on German grammar.

In French II Charlie Cardell raises a question.

Tape recorders play an important role in the study of foreign languages.

Latin students study Roman language and customs.

Business Courses Train Students for Future Occupations

In clerical practice students learn to file materials, handle mail, operate business machines and general clerical procedures.

Mrs. Lamont dictates shorthand to Carolyn, Brenda and Janet.

Students of bookkeeping learn to make bookkeeping records and prepare reports for interpreting the results of operations.

The business students use their typewriting knowledge in many ways.

Students become Skilled in Vocational Training

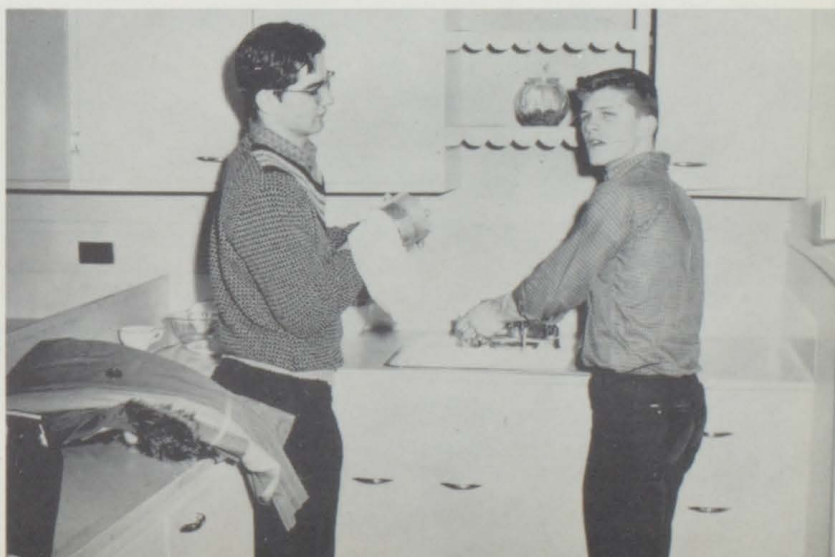

Concentrating on their drawings, students soon become familiar with the tools of mechanical drawing. Skip Ingram and Bob Willey concentrate on making accurate measurements with their triangular scales.

Bookcases, cabinets, lamps, and tables are among the many useful items turned out by the mechanical arts students.

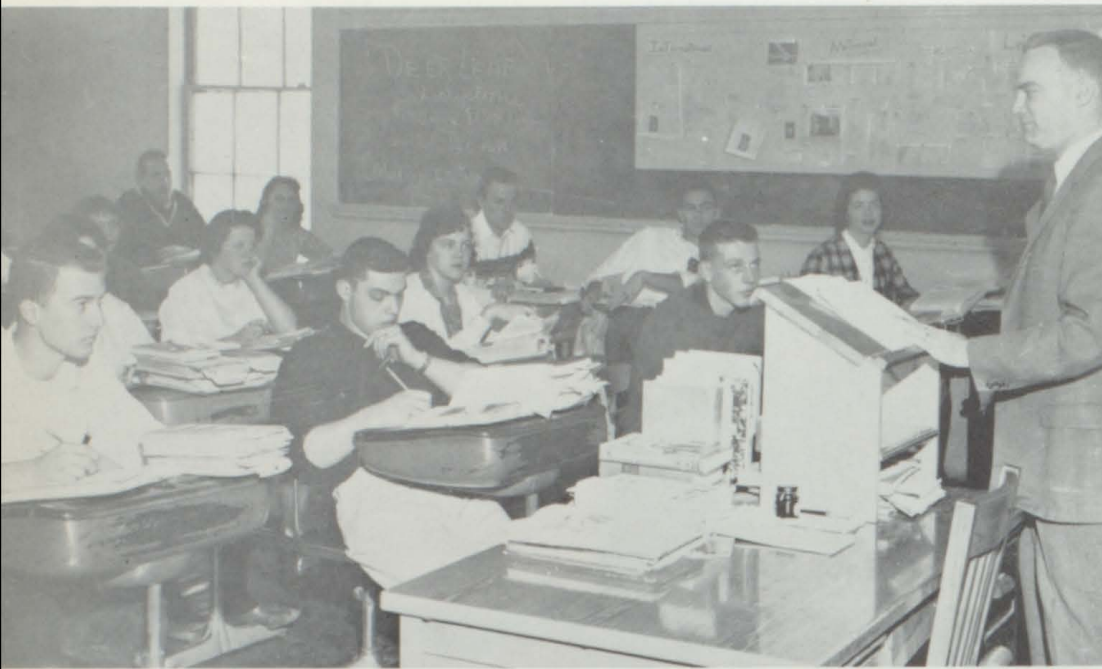

Working on their projects are Gerald Cook, James Booska and John Masterson.

Homemaking offers fun and education for both boys and girls. Marge, Sally, Ruth and Pat show the products of their efforts while Roger and Skip do the dishes.

Social Studies Unveil Past, Present and Future

History, a required course, strengthens a student's understanding of national and international problems. Mr. Graves lectures to the U. S. History class.

Civics teaches students about government and how it is run. David Adams points out an article of current events to Diane Hutchins, Cindy Gordon, Sheila Burke and Loren Lathrop.

Extra-Curricular Activities

Deer Leap

Roger gives pointers to Pat as Mrs. Lamont looks on.

Preparation for the 1961 Deer Leap took many hours of hard work. Conducting an aggressive subscription campaign, planning layouts, checking names, writing copy, and typing all demanded serious concentration on the part of the advisors, editors, and typists to bring you the 1960-61 year in review.

"The Deer Leap Staff in Action"

Assistant - Susan Kennedy

Bob and Mrs. Garafano go over finances for the yearbook.

Roger and Skip work on layouts and designs.

Scoop

Editor Carol Jacobs receives pointers from Mr. Brasure.

The Scoop staff and their advisors are to be commended for their fine work.

This year the Scoop staff published six issues. All issues carried complete coverage of academic, extracurricular, and social activities, as well as interesting and stimulating editorials.

Typists busily put the Scoop together.

Bruce and Pete put the paper to press.

FIRST ROW: Janice Rood, Carolyn Bristol, Marge Weaver, Pat Lathrop, Judy Gardner, Diane Lathrop, Mary Kenyon, Donna Wheelock, Bonnie Kennedy, Shelly Bouvier, Betty Lathrop, Gail Babbish, Ellen Tyler.
